Zachary Vaughan works in Tokyo, Japan where he shares the Gospel through relational evangelism and teaching free English lessons to university students in the community.

I have served two years discipling, ministering, and counseling international university students in Ulaanbaatar, Mongolia. During my second year in Mongolia, the Lord called me to university and young professionals ministries in Tokyo, Japan. I am serving under Japanese Church of God Pastor Izaya Yatsuzuka at the newly established church plant in Shibuya district in Tokyo, Japan.

This district is one of the most populated districts in Tokyo and home to Aoyama Gakuin University, with 20,000 students in attendance along with seven other universities surrounding the Shibuya district. I am working with Pastor Izaya Yatsuzuka in advancing the kingdom of God in Shibuya through relational evangelism and teaching free English lessons to university students in the community.
